

Parent-Reported Diagnosis of ADHD by a Health Care Provider and Medication Treatment Among Children 4-17 Years: National Survey of Children's Health* – 2003 to 2011

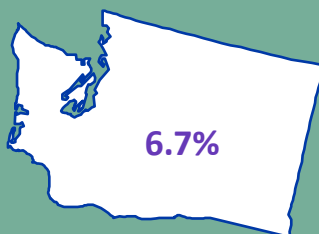

Survey Question

Has a doctor or health care provider ever told you that your child had attention-deficit/hyperactivity disorder or attention deficit disorder (ADHD or ADD)?

Does your child currently have ADHD or ADD?

In 2007, 7.2% of US children and 6.7% of children in Washington had current ADHD, by parent report.

2007

Among all US states, Washington ranked 33rd highest.

In 2011, 8.8% of US children and 8.0% of children in Washington had current ADHD, by parent report.

2011

Among all US states, Washington ranked 35th highest.

Is your child currently taking medication for ADHD or ADD?

In 2007, 4.8% of US children and 4.1% of children in Washington were taking medication for ADHD.

2007

Among all US states, Washington ranked 36th highest.

In 2011, 6.1% of US children and 5.0% of children in Washington were taking medication for ADHD.

2011

Among all US states, Washington ranked 39th highest.

* The National Survey of Children's Health is conducted by CDC and sponsored by the Maternal and Child Health Bureau, HRSA: www.cdc.gov/nchs/slaits/nsch.htm