SUPPLEMENT

United States Designated Yellow Fever Vaccination Centers

Yellow fever is a viral disease which affects man and other vertebrates. At present cases of yellow fever are being reported from only Africa and South America.

Some countries in Africa require an International Certificate of Vaccination Against Yellow Fever from all arrivals. Many countries of the world require a Certificate if, within the 6 days before arrival, a traveler has visited a country reporting yellow fever. Some countries require a Yellow Fever Certificate from travelers arriving from yellow fever "endemic zones." (See Figures 1 and 2.) Some African countries, French Guiana in South America, and Portuguese Timor in Asia do not require a Certificate if a traveler arrives from a non-infected area and stays less than 2 weeks.

A Yellow Fever Certificate is not required to enter the United States regardless of itinerary but vaccination is recommended for travel to areas where yellow fever infection exists.

Detailed information on vaccination requirements for international travel is included in Supplement to the Morbidity and Mortality Weekly Report, Volume 22, No. 17, April 18, 1973, and is updated in subsequent issues under "International Notes - Quarantine Measures."

A Yellow Fever Certificate becomes valid 10 days after primary vaccination or on the date of revaccination if within 10 years of first injection. It remains valid for 10 years.

The Collected Recommendations of the Public Health Service Advisory Committee on Immunization Practices, Supplement to the Morbidity and Mortality Weekly Report, Volume 21, No. 25, June 24, 1972, contains information on yellow fever vaccine. It also includes information on the simultaneous administration of yellow fever and other live virus vaccines.

For purposes of international travel, yellow fever immunization must be given at an officially designated Yellow Fever Vaccination Center. The following is a list of the U.S. Designated Yellow Fever Vaccination Centers. Any subsequent changes will be published in the Morbidity and Mortality Weekly Report under "International Notes - Quarantine Measures."

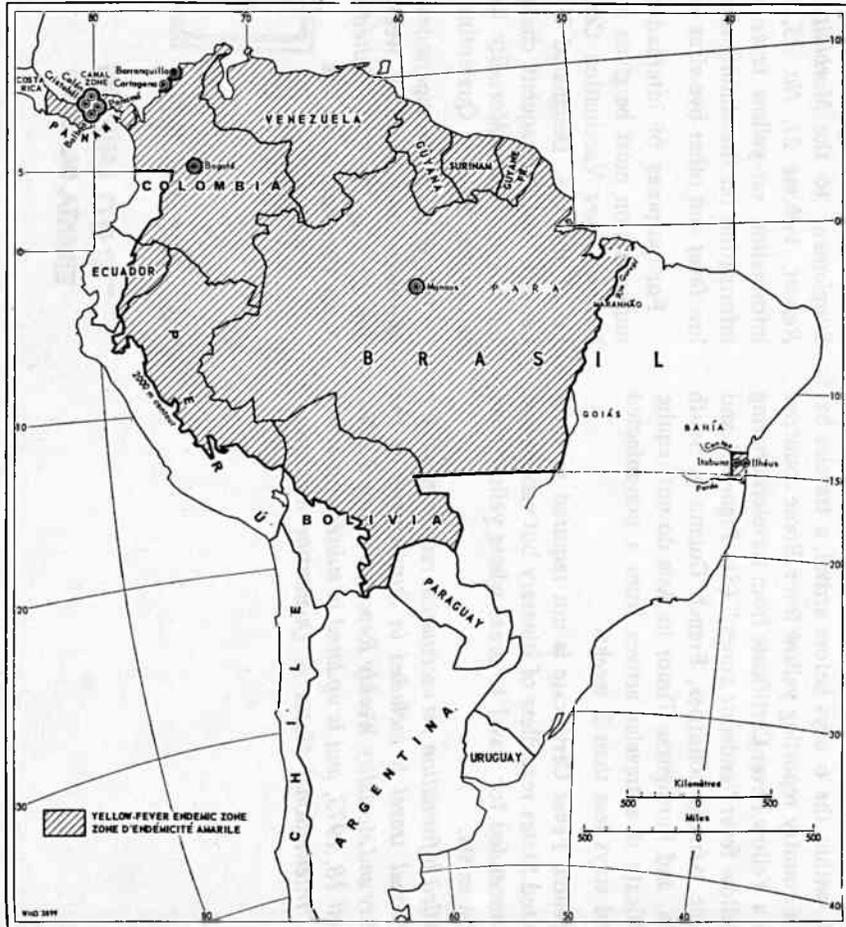

This publication supersedes the Supplement to the Morbidity and Mortality Weekly Report, Volume 21, No. 20, May 20, 1972, United States Designated Yellow Fever Vaccination Centers.
