

QuickStats

FROM THE NATIONAL CENTER FOR HEALTH STATISTICS

Percentage* of Office-Based Primary Care Physicians Not Accepting New Patients, by Source of Payment — United States, 2013

* With 95% confidence intervals.

In 2013, overall, 8.4% of primary care physicians reported that they did not accept new patients. However, acceptance varied by the patient's expected payment source: 35% of physicians did not accept new Medicaid patients, 27.7% did not accept new Medicare patients, and 19.3% did not accept new privately insured patients.

Source: National Electronic Health Records Survey data, available at http://www.cdc.gov/nchs/ahcd/ahcd_questionnaires.htm.

Reported by: Esther Hing, MPH, ehing@cdc.gov, 301-458-4271; Sandra Decker, PhD; Eric Jamoom, PhD.